Mayors for Peace delegation attends the Third Meeting of States Parties to the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons

A Mayors for Peace delegation, including Vice President Belit Onay (Mayor of Hannover) and Secretary General Takehiro Kagawa, attended the Third Meeting of States Parties (3MSP) to the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons (TPNW) in New York, US. At the 3MSP, they expressed profound concern regarding the devastating humanitarian consequences of the use of nuclear weapons, called for advancing discussions to ensure the effective implementation of the TPNW, and urged the representatives of national governments and the UN to make concrete progress toward nuclear disarmament. In addition, Mayors for Peace hosted a joint side event for the 3MSP with ICAN (the International Campaign to Abolish Nuclear Weapons), held the Mayors for Peace Atomic Bomb Exhibition, Exhibition of Children’s Art Competition “Peaceful Towns” and VR Experience, to have the 3MSP attendees deepen their understanding of the realities of the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki and the initiatives of Mayors for Peace.

On March 5, Vice President Onay and Secretary General Kagawa delivered the Mayors for Peace statement during the General Exchange of Views session.

In his speech, Secretary General Kagawa emphasized that Mayors for Peace places great importance on the TPNW. He also highlighted that Nihon Hidankyo’s receipt of the Nobel Peace Prize reaffirms to the entire international community, including nuclear-armed states, the message that the use of nuclear weapons is never acceptable.

Following this, Vice President Onay spoke about the severe destruction the City of Hannover suffered during the Second World War. He noted that the TPNW has opened a way to achieve the abolition of nuclear weapons, specifically at a time when the risks posed by nuclear weapons are increasing. Concluding his speech, he urged all states to ratify the TPNW and to initiate a foreign policy shift toward a peaceful resolution of conflicts through dialogue in good faith.

On this occasion, the delegation had opportunities to meet with representatives of national governments and the UN to exchange views on the unfolding situation of the world concerning nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation. In the meetings, the delegation called on the representatives to take concrete actions toward a world without nuclear weapons and requested support for the expansion of Mayors for Peace membership.

In order to further promote the culture of peace as outlined in its PX Vision, Mayors for Peace will, in close collaboration with the member cities, the UN, and other NGOs, continue to develop youth leadership by utilizing its network and establish a civil society which urges policymakers to demonstrate decisive leadership to effect peace-oriented policy change.

Meetings with Member Cities

To inform new members about our initiatives and strengthen ties with them, we have been organizing Zoom meetings since June 2024. We are also happy to accommodate these meetings for existing members. In February 2025, we had the pleasure of connecting with the Mayor from a member city in Portugal. These meetings provide invaluable opportunities, not only to share information about our initiatives but also to learn about the unique efforts of each member city.

Meeting Agenda:

- Introduction of yourself and your municipality
- Overview of Mayors for Peace initiatives available to member cities
- Q&A Session

With Mayor Rui Raposo of Vidigueira, Portugal (left)

We learned that the Municipality of Vidigueira has been implementing peace activities with universities there. We truly look forward to collaborating with Vidigueira and its youth in the future. It was both a pleasure and an honor to connect with the Mayor, a fellow peace advocate. Let’s continue working together for a peaceful future. If you have any questions or are interested in our initiatives, please feel free to contact us at any time. We are always happy to hear from you!

German Chapter

German Mayors for Peace Conference on March 21, 2025

Ms. Evelyn Kamissek, Mayor's Office, International Unit, City of Hannover, Germany

The German Chapter held their Mayors for Peace Conference in the former federal capital of Bonn. Some 35 members took part in presence while the same amount joined online.

The format of the session included a modern digital survey tool that engaged participants with questions on the topics and generated a mood picture. Thankfully, we received a greeting message from Mayor Kazumi Matsui of Hiroshima, President of Mayors for Peace. Firstly, we listened to a keynote speech from Prof. Dr. Conrad Schetter (Bonn International Centre of Conflict Studies) entitled "Everyone wants peace! On the possibilities of peace-making in times of eroding international order". Then, followed a panel discussion with him as well as Mayor Katja Doerner (Bonn), Mayor Belit Onay (Hannover) and Regina Hagen (Action alliance "nuclear-weapons-free now").

After a short lunch break, Mayor Onay reported on his impressions and the results of the 3rd Meeting of the States Parties to the TPNW in New York. Dirk Lechelt, Head of the Nuclear Safety and Security Unit at the Federal Foreign Office reported on "Challenges for nuclear disarmament and arms control" which was followed by a discussion.

The news from the Mayors for Peace office Hannover included measures and activities in 2024 and 2025, the number of members and the balance sheet connected with a call for the membership fees. Finally, the member cities Chemnitz and Leipzig shared their activities and the Crane Campaign of the Peace Cooperative Network was presented.

Report from the Executive Advisor

The Role of Cities in the Promotion of Nuclear Disarmament

Jackie Cabasso, Executive Advisor, Hiroshima Peace Culture Foundation

Mayors for Peace was pleased to co-sponsor a side event and reception on March 4 during the Third Meeting of States Parties to the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons. “The Role of Cities in the Promotion of Nuclear Disarmament,” was sponsored by the Austrian Permanent Mission to the UN. Other co-sponsors were the Back from the Brink campaign, Northwestern University, the International Campaign to Abolish Nuclear Weapons (ICAN), International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, and Physicians for Social Responsibility.

The events were convened by Professor Hirokazu Miyazaki of Northwestern University, who is conducting research on municipal efforts for nuclear disarmament and nuclear justice. A roundtable discussion featured George-Wilhelm Gallhofer, Austrian Foreign Ministry; Takehiro Kagawa, Secretary General, Mayors for Peace; Mayor Belit Onay, Hannover, Germany; Mayor Malik Evans, Rochester, New York; Mayor Nicole LaChappelle, Easthampton, Massachusetts; Alderwoman Maria Hadden, Chicago City Council, Illinois; and Francesco Vignarca, Campaigns Coordinator, the Italian Peace and Disarmament Network. Hiroshima Mayor Kazumi Matsui and Nagasaki Mayor Shiro Suzuki participated via video.

The reception which followed featured speakers from the roundtable as well as U.S. nuclear disarmament campaigners. Baltimore, Maryland Comptroller Bill Henry and California Majority Leader Cecilia Aguiar-Curry participated via video.

Both events drew capacity audiences and provided an opportunity to learn from local elected officials about how and why they decided to get involved in promoting nuclear disarmament, and to examine the key role of local grassroots organizing during this time of rising global tensions and uncertainty.

A closer look at the “World’s Fissile Material Inventory in 2024” Part 1: Research Center for Nuclear Weapons Abolition, Nagasaki University (RECNA)

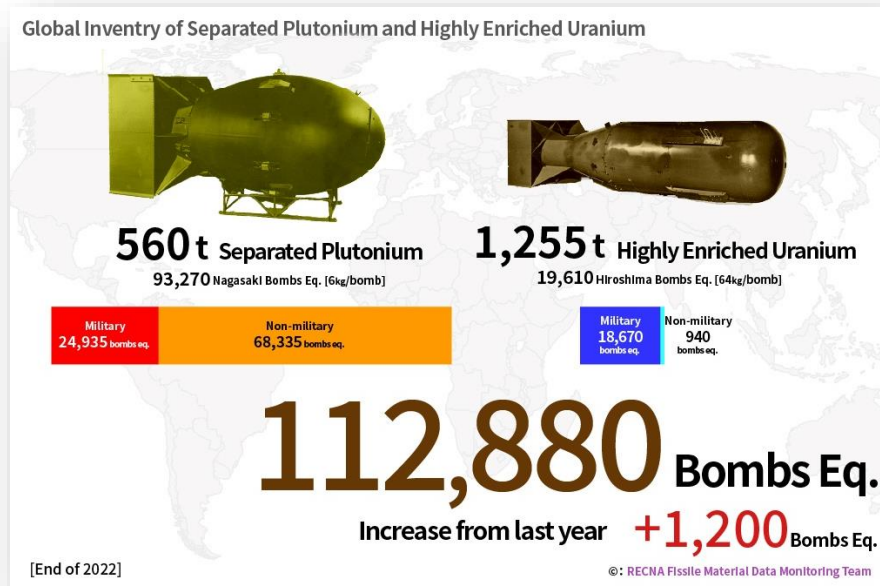

In the previous issues, we have provided detailed explanations of the “World’s Nuclear Warhead Count” poster, along with answers to frequently asked questions related to nuclear warhead trends.

Starting with this issue, we will turn our attention to another key topic: “World’s Fissile Material Inventory.” Alongside the warhead data, RECNA continuously tracks and publishes data on the global stockpiles of fissile materials.

As of the end of 2022, approximately 1,255 tons of highly enriched uranium (HEU) and about 560 tons of separated plutonium exist worldwide, covering both military and non-military (*) uses. To better illustrate the scale of this situation, the figure below shows these amounts converted into the number of bombs equivalent to those dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki 80 years ago.

The Hiroshima bomb is believed to have contained 64 kg of HEU, while the Nagasaki bomb contained 6 kg of plutonium. When we apply these figures to the current global stockpile, it amounts to approximately 19,610 Hiroshima-type bombs and 93,270 Nagasaki-type bombs—bringing the total to nearly 113,000 bombs’ worth of fissile material. (Please note that this is a rough estimate, subject to considerable uncertainty.)

Of further concern is the overall upward trend in fissile material stocks. Compared to the previous year, the global inventory of HEU decreased by around 5 tons, or about 70 Hiroshima bombs' worth. However, the amount of separated plutonium increased by 8 tons—approximately 1,270 Nagasaki bombs—mainly due to an increase in civilian plutonium. As a result, the net total has risen by the equivalent of about 1,200 bombs compared to last year. (To be continued)

* Military and Non-military Uranium:

Military: HEU used in nuclear warheads, or for reactor fuel for naval nuclear propulsion. Non-military: HEU used for fuel for research and testing reactors; and that declared as “excess” for military purposes.

Military and Non-military Plutonium:

Military: Plutonium used in nuclear warheads.

Non-military: Plutonium separated from spent nuclear fuel in nuclear reactor for non-military purposes; and plutonium declared as “excess” for nuclear weapons

Peace-related news from Hiroshima

(provided by the Chugoku Shimbun Hiroshima Peace Media Center)

During the five-day period March 3–7, the third meeting of States Parties to the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons (TPNW) was held at the United Nations headquarters in New York City, the United States.

At the meeting, there were no observer participants present from countries that are reliant on the “nuclear umbrella,” including Japan and member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), giving a sense of the clear and growing divide that exists between nations that support the treaty and those that do not. Meanwhile, around 160 non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and roughly 1,000 members of the public took part in the event. At the site of the meeting, the Mayors for Peace organization played a role in enlivening the atmosphere by holding events and setting up exhibit booths, among other activities. The meeting unquestionably served as an opportunity to enhance solidarity between nations that support the treaty and civil society. As the TPNW now turns “four years old,” there is still time to work on its development moving forward. Citizens of the A-bombed cities certainly have much to contribute to that effort.
